

The VOX

(Let your voice be heard)

Kindness makes the world go round, not money. Every kind thing you do for someone else results in another kind act for someone else. Do the maths. If we only do kind acts then billions of kind acts will be passed on every day.

You can even be rewarded for kindness in the Wessex Cancer Trust Competition.

February is all about love, not just romantic love though. Remember to remind your friends, family and anyone you admire to love themselves and the amazing reasons you think they should.

Spilling Ink Story

Everybody has something, everybody has someone. Whether that something is the hobby that keeps you up until 3am or whether that someone annoys you to the point of no return, everybody has a spark. You can usually see it in someone's eyes, a dull shimmer blended into selfish desire or a blazing inferno otherwise concealed between a tempered exterior, that is the thing I believe sets us apart in a way. Sure someone can be the coolest person around, they can walk cool, talk cool and wear cool clothes but what's inside? A dying ember- the purest reflection of a person two feet away from giving up. I have a spark, I mean it's enthusiasm is very much dependent on how many hours it's been since it last had cake but I do have a spark. Mine is writing and my mind, a million ideas are always whizzing around my head (sometimes at really inconvenient moments) but the point I'm trying to make is that they're always there. My spark is my role as a sister, my underlying protectiveness and that death glare I have apparently inherited from my Mum. My goal to find the truth and change things for the better. I think that's where people go wrong, we're so busy trying to blend in or stand out and be individual that we don't realise that being different is the one thing that makes us the same. We all want to be different. That's why our sparks are because they want to be different too.

Is Valentine's Day Overcommercialised?

Is valentine's day a loving holiday or just over commercialised?

Valentines originated from Lupercalia a roman festival in mid february to purify the city it then progressed into a holiday about love and showing affection to those closest to you it is now to be related to saints of valentine who were martyred and even greek and roman gods like eros and cupid. But in modern day valentines is just a day for people to buy chocolate and flowers for ones that they love, a day that brings back chivalry and for capitalism is feeding from the increased sales in chocolate and anything love related. Do you think valentine's day is a day just to show your love for those who you care about or just a way for companies to make money?
